EU Law Intro

EU law is divided into 'primary' and 'secondary' legislation. The treaties (primary legislation) are the basis or ground rules for all EU action.

Secondary legislation – which includes regulations, directives and decisions – are derived from the principles and objectives set out in the treaties.

The European Union is based on the rule of law. This means that every action taken by the EU is founded on treaties that have been approved voluntarily and democratically by all EU member countries.

The aims set out in the EU treaties are achieved by several types of legal act. These legislative acts include regulations, directives, recommendations and opinions. Some are binding, others are not. Some apply to all EU countries, others to just a few.

EU case-law is made up of judgments from the European Union's Court of Justice, which interpret EU legislation.

Spotlight on the EU digital COVID certificate

In March, the European Commission presented a proposal to create an EU digital COVID certificate (EUDCC) to facilitate the free movement of citizens within the EU during the pandemic, without it posing a risk to public health. The procedures for the launch of the certificate were completed on 14 June when the presidents of the European Parliament, the Council and the Commission signed the EUDCC regulation. It was then up to the Member States to connect to the technical backbone of the system, the EUDCC gateway, through which they can verify the authenticity of certificates issued across Europe.

Available to EU citizens and their family members, regardless of their nationality, and to non-EU nationals who reside in the EU, the EUDCC is valid throughout the EU and the Schengen area (i.e. it is valid in all EU Member States plus Iceland, Liechtenstein, Norway and Switzerland). It is accessible in both digital and paper-based format to travellers who have been fully vaccinated with one of the vaccines approved by the European Medicines Agency, those who have recently recovered from COVID-19 and those who have recently tested negative for COVID-19.

*The European digital COVID certificate reassures us of the spirit of an open Europe. a Europe
